A BOEING 787 800 DREAMLINER LANDS AT MILAN BERGAMO AIRPORT FOR THE FIRST TIME

The aircraft, operated by Air Europa, was used for a repatriation flight

Today, 3 June 2020, a Boeing 787 800 Dreamliner landed at Milan Bergamo Airport for the first time. The aircraft, in the livery of the Air Europa airline, had taken off from Miami, and after a stopover at Madrid, it landed at 1:00 pm local time in Bergamo. The flight was organised for the repatriation of citizens from Italy, Europe and other countries, returning from the United States.

The B787 800 Dreamliner has an operational range of 14,700 km, and 20% lower fuel consumption, producing 20% fewer carbon dioxide emissions.

Of the 163 passengers who arrived on the Air Europa B 787 800 Dreamliner, in a 296-seat configuration of which 22 in business class, 34 ended their journey at Milan Bergamo Airport, while 129 transferred to flights operated by other airlines, flying to London Stansted, Mumbai, Kiev and Minsk.

Arriving passengers underwent the mandatory health screening protocol, with their temperature measured by a thermal scanner.
