FlyOne Armenia launches a direct flight between Milan Bergamo and Yerevan

Milan Bergamo Airport expands its international destination network with the arrival of FlyOne Armenia, which from 1 May 2026 will operate a twice-weekly service to Yerevan, the capital of Armenia and an important gateway to the Caucasus region. Flights are scheduled on Fridays and Sundays, with evening departures from Milan Bergamo Airport and afternoon departures from Yerevan.

Yerevan becomes the 152nd destination served by Milan Bergamo Airport, while the launch of FlyOne Armenia brings the total number of airlines operating scheduled services at the airport to 23.

The new connection further strengthens Milan Bergamo Airport's role as a gateway to markets outside the European Union. Via Yerevan, passengers will be able to connect to numerous destinations in Central Asia.

Giacomo Cattaneo, Director of Commercial Aviation, Marketing & Communications at SACBO, stated:

“We are pleased to welcome FlyOne Armenia to Milan Bergamo Airport. The introduction of Yerevan adds a unique dimension to our network, opening access to a destination that combines strong tourism appeal with significant community ties. It also reflects our ongoing commitment to identifying and developing routes that respond to evolving passenger demand, particularly towards underserved markets. We are confident that this service will be successful and will further expand the range of choices available to our passengers.”

FlyOne Armenia is an airline that forms part of the wider FlyOne Group. It operates a modern fleet of Airbus A320 family aircraft and has steadily developed its network across Europe, Central Asia, the Caucasus and the Middle East, offering services at affordable fares.
