TRAVEL AND ENTRY IN ITALY

In accordance with Italian regulations, movements from and to countries in list C are permitted without the need to specify the reason for the journey (except for the limitations that may apply in Italy according to the specific region). There is always the possibility that these countries may apply restrictions on entrance (it is advisable to consult the files for destination countries at www.viaggiaresicuri.it).

From 16 January 2021 until 15 February 2021

For arrivals in Italy, if the individual has stayed in, or been in transit through, one or more of the countries in list C during the 14 previous days, it is mandatory to have taken a molecular or antigenic test, performed by means of a swab, that has produced a negative result, within the 48-hour period before entrance into the Italian territory. Self-isolation is not necessary on arrival, but travellers are nonetheless required to inform the department of prevention at the local health authority regarding their entrance into the country (for further information for people residing, living or staying in the province of Bergamo, refer to the Bergamo ATS [health authority] website at the link www.ats-bg.it), and likewise they are required to compile the self-declaration form (www.interno.gov.it/it-autodichiarazione [self-declaration], form for journeys).

If no documentation is presented with regard to the required molecular or antigenic test, the traveller has to undergo self-isolation and health surveillance.

There are certain limited exceptions to the mandatory self-isolation, surveillance and obligatory swab test, as detailed on the website www.viaggiaresicuri.it.
